—E. W. Dodd will spend a few days at Jonestown, N. Y.

—George F. Copey is stopping at Quigong, I. I.

—Allen Hall and family have returned from their trip.

—Rev. Geo. W. Timlow has been to Great Barrington, Mass.

—William Carl and sister are spending a few days at Lake George.

—Mr. C. F. Harrison is about to start on an extensive trip through the west.

—Mr. Willard Richards and Dr. H. E. Richards are expected home from Mexico today.

—Rev. H. W. Ballantine and wife have come on a visit to the Thousand Isles and Canada.

—Mr. Giles Coggeshall is seriously ill at Mountainville, N. Y., where he has been spending the summer.

—Samuel T. Cushman and his sisters, Misses Nettie and Millie, are visiting friends in Orange County, N. Y.

—The statement in the religious press that Rev. G. W. Timlow, D.D., has joined the Unitarian Church is an erroneous one.

—Rev. Geo. B. Safford, D.D., of New York, will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church next Sabbath morning.

—Miss Anna Lewis, of Ellenville, New York State, is spending a few weeks in town, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Westlake.

—William Johnson, John Jacobus and Samuel Morse are stopping at the Hamilton House, Asbury Park. E. P. Johnson will join them this afternoon.

—The so-called gold-headed cane among those on the pitching canvass at the Hose picnic was won by Harry Cooper, he having secured three canes with ten rings.

—It is said the Turners' picnic on Monday evening, at Weaver's Grove, was a failure. Not so with the Hose Company's effort on Wednesday evening.

—The Township Committee have a good chance to distinguish themselves, by removing the dilapidated plank walks on Bloomfield avenue. This nuisance has long existed and it should be remedied at once.

—The Wm. S. Pierson Post File and Drum Corps, although they will probably make an engagement with the Watessing Zouaves for the campaign, are ready for other engagements on off nights.

—Cyrus F. Pierson is having a frame dwelling erected on Oakland avenue, which is 22 x 30 feet at foundation, two and a half story, with extension kitchen. Messrs. Cadmus and Keohline have the contract.

—A game of base ball was played between the married and unmarried nines chosen from the employees of T. Oakes & Co.'s mill on Saturday last, resulting in a score of 32 to 25 in favor of the former.

—M. H. Clark, editor of the Record (now defunct), is publishing the Yonkers Democrat at Yonkers, N. Y. The appearance, style and make-up of the paper conforms with that of the Record, although the political view is changed.

—It is especially requested by the Picnic Committee of Bloomfield Hose Co., No. 4, that all who have taken tickets for sale will report on Saturday evening, Aug. 23, 1884, at 8 p. m., at the Hose house, in order to make an early final report.

—A new horse owned by Mr. George H. Thomas ran away on Saturday evening, near the inclined plane, where he had been left untied by the hired man. A generally demoralized wagon, an injured horse and a driver in search of a job were the results of this piece of carelessness.

—Mr. and Mrs. Elias S. Bennet, of Bloomfield, after a month's pleasuring among the Berkshire Hills, of New Hampshire, have gone to Saratoga Springs, their usual summering resort and are guests at the Grand Union Hotel. They purpose returning to town on or about September 1.

—The Schools will open Monday, September first. The list of teachers engaged will be ready in a few days. Most of the old ones will be in their places as usual. The Centre Primary will be accommodated at the Centre School until their rooms upon Liberty street are ready for occupancy.

—A game of base ball took place on Saturday between the Nameless and Mystics (both home nines) upon the grounds of the former club. At the end of the fifth inning the score stood 34 to 14 in favor of the Nameless. Constant practice has added much to the skill of the latter club, and some changes in the membership have been made with good effect. The necessity of a skillful pitcher has not been overlooked.

Republican Ratification.

A Republican ratification meeting will be held at Dodd's Hall, Monday evening next, August 25th, at eight o'clock. Major Pangborn, in his usual spirited manner, will arouse the enthusiasm of the Republicans of Bloomfield to start vigorously the work of the campaign.

Teachers' Examinations.

The examinations of candidates for Teachers' Certificates in Essex County will, under further notice, be held at the Public School Building in Montclair.

The next examination will be on Friday, August 29, at 9 a. m. Subjects: Orthography, Reading, Arithmetic, Geography, and Grammar. The subjects for Saturday, August 30, will be English Composition, Constitution of United States, Physiology, School Law, Natural Philosophy, Algebra, History of United States, Book keeping and Theory and Practice of Teaching.

Success.

All young persons are desirous of succeeding in life, either by accumulating wealth or achieving fame, and yet comparatively few make due preparation. The game of chance rarely affords a competency, or the stultic fame. The acquisition of money is usually dependent on active, enthusiastic, and intelligent labor, and true fame is only gained in a legitimate competition between great minds. These truths are self evident, as illustrated in the various pursuits of man. In these competitions, the result is more largely dependent on educational training than possibly on any other combination of circumstances, and the more practical the training the better the preparation. The business college has opened up an avenue, available to all, male and female, by which to secure the necessary training, and among the many the attention of our readers is directed to the New Jersey Business College, 764 & 766 Broad street, Newark, as an institution eminently qualified to aid youth in achieving success.

Justice Notes.

On Monday evening Justice Hagemann's court was overcrowded with people anxious to hear the case of O'Brien vs. John Connelly. It appeared that a number of men were playing weights on Sunday, near the foundry at Watessing, and while there O'Brien was struck in the face, as he claims, by Connelly. The evidence being insufficient to hold Connelly the Justice was compelled to discharge him. While the trial was in progress, a saloon keeper became so disorderly that the Court threatened to lock him up if he did not get out. The Court remarked that the parties who had participated in the gaming would hear from him shortly.

John Mack, a well-known character was sent to Jail by Justice Hagemann on Tuesday night, his bondsman, Frank A. Croose, having surrendered him.

The Hope Sunday-School Picnic.

This mission school, whose building stands near the head of the Inclined Plane in North Bloomfield, enjoyed the pleasure of a day in the woods on Wednesday last. Starting from the Chapel at about two o'clock, in three wagons provided for the purpose, a drive was had through the village returning by way of Ridgewood to the picnic grounds on Forest avenue, opposite the residence of Mrs. De Gress. Here tables were spread, swings prepared and a delightful grove found, in which the children, their teachers and many friends soon scattered. A couple of hours were spent in play; after which songs were sung and the Divine blessing invoked, preparatory to the enjoyment of a generous feast, whose abundance included cream, peaches, cake and lemonade. This over, some time was left for play, before night set in, and the little ones found their way homeward in knots and groups, well pleased with their afternoon's enjoyment. To all who were present, and there were at least 150 upon the grounds, the day was one of unalloyed pleasure, and to the teachers, of satisfaction also in the gladness of their scholars. To the Superintendent, Mr. John G. Broughton, who planned this entertainment, to the teachers who executed it and to many friends in the First Presbyterian Church, some of whom contributed both time, money and provisions, the school is under deep obligations. Mr. Benjamin Haskell should also be remembered for his aid in preparing the grove for the reception of its guests. If any wonder at the success of this mission school, let such be assured that its longevity and numbers are due to the faithful work of a band of enthusiastic teachers, to whom time is nothing and work of small consideration, if only the school prosper. Its expenses are met by the joint contributions of friends in the First Presbyterian and Westminster Churches. The regular Sabbath service is held at 3:30 p. m., to which all are welcome.

Bloomfield Hose Company's Picnic.

The picnic was held at Weaver's Grove on Wednesday afternoon and evening, and the day proving pleasant, it was a grand success. The attendance in the afternoon was rather small, but in the evening increased until over a thousand people were on the grounds. Delegations from the following fire departments were present: Newark, East Orange, Montclair and Belleville. The festivities were continued till a little after midnight, and all expressed themselves as delighted with the Hose boys' entertainment, and are anxious to know how soon another picnic will be given. The boys were all on duty, having taken the hose and carriage to the grove, so that in case of an alarm there would be no delay. The committee desire to express their grateful thanks to the townspeople and others for their presence and support. It is supposed that sufficient funds have been realized to purchase the much needed hose carriage.

Montclair Squibs.

It is reported that the Children's Home was entered on Saturday night, and some blankets and children's clothing were stolen.

The Refreshment Rooms of the Montclair Reform Club have been enlarged, and another Pool Table has been placed there. The Club Rooms are well patronized, the Saturday evening and Sunday Gospel Meetings at four o'clock especially so.

Monday, at 10:30, an alarm of fire was rung, and the Truck and Chemical started for Chestnut Hill, but before reaching there, word was received that it was only "a brush heap," so the boys returned. The alarm was turned in through the telephone, and so could not be properly investigated.

Monday afternoon while raising the pole for the Republican Club banner, a guy rope broke after the pole was lifted about twenty-five feet; in falling, the pole struck the Herald News Stand, knocking it over and wrecking it completely. The agent was in the house at the time, and was thrown over with it but escaped unhurt. If the pole had been three feet longer it would undoubtedly have killed the agent.

The Republican Club Banner raising on Tuesday night was a decided success. The Montclair Brass Band, and the Montclair Republican Battery with their twelve pound brass cannon, paraded. W. D. Baldwin, Esq., was chairman of the meeting, and Judge J. Frank Ford of Newark was the orator. A large crowd listened to his remarks, and repeated cheers showed that they were in sympathy with him.

The new bell-tower, erected from plans of architect Lockwood, 20 feet square at base, 10 feet square at top, 62 feet from ground to top of roof, the bell being 55 feet from the ground, is almost complete. The bell was placed in position Saturday, and is now rung by the hammer. It is expected that the ropes will be received this week, and then we expect that our bell of 2,410 pounds will give us entire satisfaction. The ringing of the bell for nine o'clock, on Tuesday night, gave the most satisfactory result of any trial yet.

Mr. William P. Lyon.

WILLIAM PHOEBUS LYON was born January 25th, 1813, at No. 5 Bayard street, New York; he was the third of twelve children, his parents being James Harvey and Elizabeth Mead Lyon. He was educated city in his father's school, but afterward attended the Crosby street High School, supplemented by private special instruction. His father leaving the city for the neighborhood of Italy, he went with him and worked on his farm for several years, when at the age of sixteen he was asked to take charge of the Primary Department of the High School in New York, at a salary of $150. He says in his diary that he did this "with the approval of his father," and mentions his farm life as "testing his industry and pluck." It was at this time that his conversion took place. He dated it August 19th, 1829, and ever afterwards observed the anniversary.

When twenty, he became Principal of Public School No. 7, New York, and held the position for three years. In 1838 he went to Tarrytown and formed the "Irving Institute," a boarding-school for boys, of which he was proprietor and principal for fifty years. He was eminently successful; loving his work, and believing that he "had a call for it." He sold his school in 1853 and engaged in business in New York. In 1861 he suffered reverses and was obliged to suspend payment. He settled with his creditors for seventy cents on the dollar, but afterwards, having again been successful in business, he voluntarily paid his creditors the balance in full. In 1862 he changed his place of business, and was burned out by fire insurance was effected, losing both machinery and stock. With his usual pluck he began again, and again made good his losses. Having acquired a competence, he withdrew from business in 1870 and retired to Bloomfield, where he had built him a home which he hoped to occupy during the remainder of his life. His investments in real estate, however, proved unfortunate, and he was unable to extricate himself. He did not, after this, assume the duties of regular business but was content with such occupation as would simply meet his family expenses.

One who knew him intimately at this period of his life, says: "He was a true-hearted Christian man. His life was in the vitality of true piety. With what a cheerful trust in God did he bear up under his later disappointments. He had the test of prosperity and the test of adversity, and he endured both. His devotion to the One whom he delighted to call Lord and Master did not falter. We shall all miss his cheerful ways, his hymn of praise, his discriminating comments on the serious and services of the Lord's House, his Christian fortitude, and his devotion to what he thought right."

Mr. Lyon was married three times, and had fifteen children; six of whom are now living, five sons and one daughter. Three of his sons entered the army during the war of the rebellion, two of whom died from wounds and sickness, the third, Mr. Phoebe W. Lyon, survived, and is now Principal of the Public School at Summit in Union County.

The limits of a newspaper sketch will not allow of more than a mere mention of several prominent points in his character and life. He was a devoted son, having taken his parents to his home in 1841, and kept them with him until their death, his father's in 1844, his mother's in 1869. While engaged in the duties of an active business life, he always found time to be at home with his family, looking after the individual training of his children, and joining with their sports, out-of-doors as well as in. He gave liberally of his means where his judgment approved, and constantly held in his school some student whom he educated gratuitously; and his advice and counsel to young men are bearing grateful fruit to day. But perhaps the one thing in his life-work which caused him most satisfaction was the conversion of so many young men under his labors in the school.

Mr. Lyon was a man of unusual vigor, which sometimes assumed a ruggedness that was likely to be misunderstood. While never seeking popularity, no one could feel more sensitively the harsh judgments of others. He always examined his course carefully before action, but when after prayerful consideration it was once decided, he went right on, never thinking whether he were in the majority or the minority. This sketch should not close without a reference to the fact that Mr. Lyon was the pioneer of journalism in Bloomfield. He published the first number of the "Saturday Gazette" in September, 1872, and continued its publication for three years. But its financial success was not sufficient to warrant its continuance.
